10 best handheld vacuum cleaners

As parents of infants know, it is painful to carry a straight or canister vacuum to clean crios scattered under and around high chairs. It's the perfect job for handheld vacuum cleaners. Hand backs are also the right tool to attack the chaos that accumulates in the backseat of an SUV. Many of today's handheld vacuum cleaners can dispatch these debris quickly. Misha Kollontai, who oversees handheld vacuum testing at Consumer Reports, says expectations for hand vacuum cleaners are changing. And manufacturers are raising the bar for what handheld vacuums should be. Most of the newly tested wireless models in handheld vacuum ratings have been updated with updated, long-lasting lithium-ion batteries, and the runtime of test models varies from 9 to 30 minutes. A number of new models come with useful accessories and handy attachments. Because handheld vacuums are not for deep cleaning, the work of the tests is adjusted to suit the expected function. To see how the handheld vacuum captures surface waste, sand, cooked rice and Cheerios are evenly distributed across the medium pile carpet, then measure how much the vacuum picks up in 15 seconds. It also tests how well a small vacuum cleans the edges and enters narrow spots, how well it removes the pet's hair, or how badly it removes it, and how much noise the vacuum generates. If you need a more powerful vacuum, check the rating for a stick vacuum cleaner or trade full size canisters or straight. But if all you need is a compact machine for spot cleaning, read our review of the best handheld vacuum cleaners in the CR tests listed here in alphabetical order. CR's Take: This version of the Bissel Pet Hair Eraser doesn't have as many tools as other portable vacuum cleaners, but it has strong suction and has an excellent rating in carpet cleaning tests. The flip side of that power? The motor is relatively powerful, so the Bissel pet hair eraser has a strong exhaust, which can also burn dust. Important note: The only wired handheld vacuum in the recommended model, so you don't have to worry about charging before using it. However, for the cord to reach, it must be within 16 feet of the outlet. CR's Take: The Wireless Black+Decker Dustbuster is no small feat for a handheld vacuum cleaner, picking up almost all the debris from bare bottoms and carpet tests. Our engineers note that it is easy to place this model on the charger with a satisfactory click to check the connection. The filter is well set inside the trash can and is easy to remove and empty, which is why it earns an excellent rating in emissions testing. This model doesn't come with a removable tool, but it has a built-in slide-out crevice tool and pop-out brush. It makes a light whistling sound when you turn it on, which is a little noisy than the competition. CR's Take: The built-in hose in the design makes it easy to inhale debris out of reach with the compact, cordless Black+Decker Flex. Behind the car-syateat or washer. It is excellently rated in emissions tests and has a low dust and debris in the air by vacuuming it. It also comes with a rubber pet hair attachment that helps remove more hair, since it does not stick to the rubber and enters the suction tube directly. Trash cans are a bit difficult to remove, and if you empty this model on top of the bins, you may need to reach inside to get all the guns out. CR's Take: One of the more expensive options in handheld vacuum testing, the powerful, wireless Dyson V7 trigger looks like a Dyson stick vacuum cleaner minus the wand. It is the only handheld vacuum in the class with two power modes (normal and maximum) and the only handheld vacuum running for up to half an hour on a single battery charge. It is rated excellent for bare-bottom cleaning, leaving almost noticeable debris behind on the lab floor. It also comes with a removable brush that creates niche tools and maintenance, and removes pet hair from the brush roll. Dyson is not the worst case of easily reaching a narrow point, but it is not even the best. If you need a space to fit into a deep crevice, consider a model with a longer niche tool or hose, such as the Black+Decker Flex BDH2020FL above. CR's Take: The Hoover ONEPWR BH57005 is part of a wireless cleaning system that uses replaceable lithium-ion batteries for nine products, including this model, stick vacuum and other floor cleaning appliances. This handheld ace tests our bare bottom cleaning, earning excellent ratings. And it is well done in other major cleaning tests, such as cleaning carpets, removing pet hair and getting sand from the edges along the walls. Niche tools can reach you longer. CR's Take: Not all portable vacuums can handle pet heads with aplomb, but shark ion aces get great ratings. He's also a champion of cleaning bare floors and entering hard-to-reach places, and it's not too shabby to clean carpets. Vacuum and all attachments can be stored in the filling base, making it a real space saver. And at just 1.4 pounds, it's the lightest hand vacuum in our tests. The only downside to its small size is a small bucket of dust, which may need to be emptied more than once if there is a significant spill. Looking for the best handheld vacuum cleaner?
